sealed and delivered, but it is understood that the contract of the Winston Electric Construction Company was secured over a number of bidders, and practically includes all the paraphernalla pertaining to lighting—that is, the wires, generators, engines and switchboards.

The contract for plumbing was awarded to Fenson and Rose, also of Richmond. No figures pertaining to this award could be obtained.

The largest contract—in fact, the one around which the others revolve—the contract for heating, ventilating and lighting, was awarded to Eyans, Amirall and Company, of New York.

While the pententiary authorities, as well as the members of the legislative committee, refuse to give out any figures at this time, it is understood that the work contracted for calls for an expenditure of about $15,000 of the funds for the improvements at the State prison:
